Women's well-being

How gender imbalances are affecting emotional, financial, and workplace well-being for women

Parenthood and caregiving responsibilities are creating challenges for women that are impacting their lives as well as the workforce.

Although women make up nearly half of the US workforce, gender imbalances persist when it comes to housework.

Women shoulder primary responsibility for:

Doing the laundry

Cleaning the house

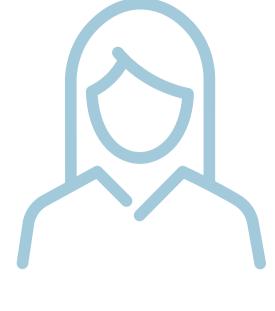

Cookir

58%

51%

Cooking

51%

parents and caregivers than men.

2 in 3 single working parents

Women are also more likely to be single are mothers.

Which is leading to more women dropping out of the workforce due to having a child.

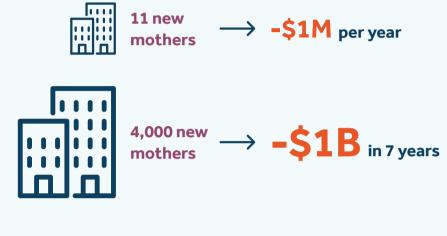

mothers intend to return to work after giving birth but 43% do not.

Over 75% of expectant per year, while a big company with 4,000 new mothers could lose over $1 billion in just seven years due in part to the costs of replacing female employees who do not return.

mothers could lose over $1 million

A small company with 11 new

As a result, with little time to look after

Caregiving responsibilities also disproportionally impact women.

mental health, and financial well-being suffer.

40% of women

themselves, women's physical health,

52% of men

Rate their emotional health as very good or excellent

27% of women

Exercise regularly

35% of men

36% of women 48% of men

Maintain a healthy weight

caregiving responsibilities impact their stress levels compared to men.

27% of women

35% of men

And women are more likely to live paycheck to paycheck, with 64% saying money is the leading cause of stress in their lives.

Only one-third of women rate their financial health as very good or excellent

4 out of 5 women don't

Addressing the needs of women's well-being

Know where you're going by identifying your life goals, while keeping them SMART: your financial fundamentals. Outline specific, measurable, achievable, relevant and time-bound. Here are some tips for want to achieve before getting started.

defining your life goals.

Although there are gaps that still need to be closed,

women can take steps to build their financial confidence.

opting for home cooked meals over eating out. Making slight tweaks to your daily activities can lead to serious savings.

× × 0 ×
Increase your knowledge by consulting with a financial representative. It's important to Make small changes for big results, such as

Understand your personal views on money and if your priorities and behaviors are misaligned. Take our Financial & Emotional Confidence Quiz to find out where you are now and the changes you can make to overcome your confidence gaps.

a financial representative. It's important to find someone you trust who can assess your situation and provide guidance.

and wealth. If helping others live better lives and having a positive impact on your community for generations to come are passions of yours, learn more about what it means to join The Guardian Network® as a financial representative here.

Financial representatives work with clients to build their financial confidence

Guardian® is a registered trademark of The Guardian Life Insurance Company of America.

© Copyright 2020 The Guardian Life Insurance Company of America.

The Guardian Network® is a network of independent agencies offering the full suite of proprietary Guardian products along with those of other top-rated carriers. 2020-113189 Exp. 12/22